without shame and without inhibitions; but he also has a vein of kindness to his person that makes the encounter with him ultimately worthwhile.

A Bone of Fact | David Walsh | Review

A Bone of Fact, by David Walsh. In this case, Walsh is expiating the sin of gambling by building a museum in which people can enjoy art. Economically it is not a particularly viable venture with MONA costing about $10 million annually to run, but generating only about $4 million in income.

Book review: A Bone of Fact, by David Walsh

A Bone of Fact by David Walsh. David Walsh – Tasmanian, mathematician, gambler and museum owner – still seems like something of a fiction. Despite an extended profile published in The New Yorker, written by Richard Flanagan, and multiple sightings around Hobart, a sense of insubstantiality
