Vowels R Controlled Vowel Patterns

The vowels that are controlled by 'r' are often difficult for children to learn. All too often, learners are taught the 'long and short' vowels and the learner then has no idea what to call words like: cord, far, bird, taller, dirt.

When the letter “r” follows a vowel, it is often referred to as a “bossy r” because it has the control to change the sound of that vowel. Our R controlled vowel worksheets will help kids show words with these combinations who is boss.

R-controlled vowels, which are also referred to as bossy R, are vowels that are modified in sound by the R that follows them. Some examples are the AR in car, the IR in girl, the UR in turn, the OR in fork and the ER in tiger. I generally teach r-controlled vowels sometime after teaching vowel digraphs.

About the Concept:

When the letter r follows a vowel, the vowel is usually forced to change its sound.

That's why we call it the "Bossy R." In most small words with one vowel in the middle, that vowel has a short vowel sound as in the words bad, hen, sit, fox, and fun.

The vowel is called an r-controlled vowel.

Sometimes teachers refer to the “r” as the “bossy r” because the r “bosses” the vowel to make a new sound.

When the “a” is followed by r, it makes the sound you hear in “bar” or “car”. When the “o” is followed by the r, it makes the sound you hear in the word “corn”.
